We welcome all teams (with a minimum of 2 members) to join us for the event. Boats will be made entirely of corrugated cardboard, including decorations, and propelled solely by 2 crew members using canoe paddles. Surfboard & raft style boats are not permitted; crew members must sit or kneel inside the boat. Entry is free, and all boats will complete a preliminary timed race, with the four fastest boats advancing to the final race.

All participants will need to preregister with us via Facebook or Email, and be present at 4pm on Friday at the pond. Complete Rules & Waivers are available via the Facebook Event page, or contact us directly at Syndicateparties@gmail.com and ask for a copy.

After all the races are complete and awards given out, there will be a voluntary demolition derby for any boats/teams that remain intact and are interested. The rules of the derby are that only boat to boat ramming is allowed (no splashing, or hitting with paddles) and the last boat afloat wins. By VJ Kevlar, Philadelphia, PA

The Giants Cube is a 18 feet high x 24 feet wide multi-sensory interactive piece that will evolve through utilization of technology, human interactions and performances. Video projection, Laser raytracing & Art, computer imagery, 3rd dimensional visual techniques, and Human interaction controllers will be brought together to blast photons into your imagination and the Forest nearby. From Dancer, to Poet, to visual Artist, to Space Invaders' experts there will be moments where all could activate the power in the Cube. See the schedule posted in the GiantsCube area near the Amphitheater to participate and experience.

POLLEN 8 INN

By Anastacia Spada, Jersey City, NJ

In the summer of 2013, an Unidentified Flying Object crash landed in Ramblewood. Scientists were dispatched to the area to perform a detailed analysis and determine if the object was a threat to humans. Upon approaching the object, they saw that it resembled a larger-than-life pink flower. It was determined that the object posed no danger, and humans flocked to see the strange, foreign object.

A SUMMERFEST PORTRAIT

By Rolf (Evan Cairo) Cunningham, Philadelphia, PA

A large, long landscape orientated live painting portrait of the lower pond area, complete with effigy and people and other art that might occur. This evolving portrait of the event will morph and grow during the course of the event, culminating in a time lapse portrait of the event itself, which will then be taken back to my studio for finishing touches and then auctioned off, with all proceeds returning to the PEX art grant budget for the following year.

GLOWFIELD 2.0

By Animus Collective, New York, NY

On Saturday night, Animus will take over the small clearing at the base of the Pavilion hill with a field of phosphorescent grass. In addition to the phosphorescent grass, Animus will explore the existing aesthetic with circles of red glow sticks which will resemble beautiful flower patches. It will be extraordinary.

THE GREAT SPHYNXTER

By Christian Breeden, Charlottesville, VA

This piece borrows its theme from the monumental architecture of ancient civilizations. It will radically alter the landscape which it inhabits and create spaces for people to congregate. The Great Sphynxter represents a powerful and wise figure, larger than life, whose purpose and intention are shrouded in mystery. My Great Sphynxter legend involves the quest for answers and the discovery of questions... "for it was there that I discovered him,...wandering lost and alone in the desert, far from the lights of the party, confused, naked, bewildered....I leaned my ear to the mouth of the Great Sphynxter and heard him muttering ancient wisdom."

FLIGHT OF THE PHEONIX

By Christian Breeden, Charlottesville, VA

The Phoenix legend is one of self-transformation: as the benevolent bird dies, it is engulfed in its own flames, only to be reborn from the ashes of its former self. Our Phoenix too shall transform with the setting of the sun, taking on new life at night as her feathers light up and glow. Her beak will be equipped with flame effects and she will spit fire high above our heads, into the dark sky. Over the days and nights of PEXSF, I hope people will be enchanted by the dream-like specter of this unique and magical beast, wrapped in her dance of creation and destruction.

THE ELECTRIC EXPRESSION GARDEN

By Gaetan Spurgin, Philadelphia, PA

My goal: To give participants a destination of the senses. The Egg Installation (a 2011 PEXSF funded Grant Project) is complemented with new seating with a nest facade and lighting. The Egg Chamber is now part of a series of interactive art installations known as "The Electric Expression Garden." The evolved Egg will be able to host nearly 20 participants on its platform, with new canvases, more thrills and more pimp... custom died fabrics and prayer flags will add to its beauty. A prayer flag station will be part of its interactive element. There will be a system of small audio pods hidden in the forest and around the festival that will play a variety of collected content via PODS, as well as featuring numerous sound scapes by local artists. These PODS move daily and only broadcast sporadically. In addition, the Video Archis is an archway that is made up of a series of square projection panels that creates the entry way into the Egg area which projects the content of the PODS. The listener and the watcher are also the participant.

A BIOMIMETIC REFLECTION

By Lauren Raske [design & fabrication], Leigh Olesen [digital technology], and Svaya-Nano founder, Ben Wang [material], Philadelphia, PA

This installation is an exploration of light and perspective through biomimetic structural color. Simple in design yet quite complex in a nano-engineered depth, panels create a color spectrum dependent on the light and shadow surrounding the structure. It speaks visually by reflecting a vast and wide color story told by the sun, programed LED's, the location of the audience, and their reflections. During the day these panels will reflect and refract light from the sun, which also provides power for a battery system wired with circuits and series of RGB LEDs. The night-scape explores patterns of front and back lighting of the material, playing with presence and absence of light in a peaceful, inquisitive, and curious program.

THE BAYT

By Meso Creso, Washington, DC

Meso Creso's tent (bayt) is an extension of our mission—to promote cultural awareness, inspires creativity without boundaries, social consciousness and innovation and provides a place for people to find their inner brightness and light. The bayt not only provides a physical shelter. The repurposed sailboat sails represent the freethinking nature and exploratory spirit of our camp, while the eclectic nature of our décor reflecting an openness to all cultures and lifestyles. The new bayt will incorporate recycled sales, utilize a sailboat mast as a center pole, have a high weatherproof ceiling, use bamboo for side poles, incorporate safety stake lighting art, and host artistic endeavors the camp has garnered a reputation for doing well in the past, such as: VJ and DJ art, environmental night and day décor, a full sound system and dance floor, and an afternoon workshop space for yoga, open mics and other forms of expression.

KINESIS: THE ELECTRIC GARDEN 3.0

By Wendell Adkins, Alexandria, VA

Kinesis: The Electric Garden Project 3.0 is part of a mobile traveling light show that is powered by sun and wind, presented in whimsical forms of biomorphic stylings to make these energy collection sculptures more pleasing to the eye. This incarnation will incorporate two main Electric Garden subprojects: The Gateway To The Future 2.0 and Solar Charged Wish Spires. These subprojects are part of a series that gives practical structure to self sustaining interactive lighting art. Besides being a fun and interesting installation to walk through and interact with, it tends to attract those seeking contemplation, generates conversation, is thought provoking, and has proved to be a memorable part of events wherever it is presented. In Version 3.0, elements from other smaller subprojects, Bottle Lights and solar charged Sof-T designs that double as a shade structure, are incorporated as well.

KAMP KOUNSELORS TREE OF LIGHT

Kamp Kounselors, N. Bethesda, MD

For the past four years at PEX Summer Fest, Kamp Kounselors have provided an interactive social setting and lounge which the community enjoys 24 hours a day. It is a true living room area - an outdoor place where all are welcome to relax, dance, visit, laugh, sleep, read, meditate, and listen to music in the midst of comfort, shade... bubbles by day, and an aura of light by night.

THE EVOLUTION OF EXPRESSION: LIVE ART

By RaeVena, Lakewood, OH

Everyday Rae will set up her easel near the stage and paint nearly all afternoon and late into the night to capture inspiration from music in color! To meet people enthusiastic about her work, and get to interact with them.. is one of the most rewarding & inspiring things to have developed in her life...

MONKEY BUDDHA SPACE TEMPLE

By Kirill Satanovsky

Deep in the caverns of Mars we discovered a place of ancient mystery. A sacred temple in space where monkeys are worshiped and magic abounds. Of course we knew we had to excavate and reconstruct it at PEX. Orbs of light pulse to the subtle cosmic beats, each representing a section of the sonic spectrum to create a cosmic spectrogram who's colors shift with your touch. Our LED Monkey Buddha presides over the temple in luminous serenity, begging its disciples to affect the color of its aura.
